Lawrence Strike Not Settled Yet

WE ARE PREPARING FOR A BLOODY BATTLE.

Lawrence, Mass., March 10.—Alleged leaders in the textile strike grew the belief that the end is not far off with a victory for the strikers already assured by the filing of general increases in wages. There was no let up today in preparation for continuing the struggle. Speakers at nearly a score of meetings laid stress upon the necessity of maintaining their strength. The leaders planned no more pickets on duty tomorrow than at any time since the strike began two months ago. Strikers' committee probably will call an official in Boston tomorrow. The increase of 7 1/2 percent in wages announced by this company, aids favor with the strikers but leaders want to know in terms of dollars and cents the operation of the maximum and minimum of new scale. President Wood is expected to furnish these figures. The premium system also stands the way of an immediate settlement but although the strikers have demanded its abolition they are unwilling to agree to a modification of the plan. A settlement between the American Woolen Co. and its striking employees will be followed probably by an agreement like in practically all the mills here to care for children during the strike are pouring into the strike committee from various parts of the country, including Wisconsin, Philadelphia and New York. The committee will not send a Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—It was reported here today that workers in the local textile mills will receive an increase in pay and have their working hours reduced from thirty-eight to fifty-five hours a week. The changes, according to state agriculture officials, were discussed at a meeting of mill owners but it was not expected to take effect April 1.

SAYS IT IS POSSIBLE SCOTT GOT TO SOUTH POLE—HE IS CONGRATULATED.

Boston, Mass., March 10.—Captain Aald Amundsen, the discoverer of the South Pole, said today that he thought it quite possible that Captain Robert F. Scott, the British explorer had attained the pole. He had hoped so at least. His own base he said was 600 miles from that of the British party and his winter camp was near the pole than Scott. He had no idea of the time that Capt. Scott had started for the pole.

Captain Amundsen has received thousands of congratulatory messages. He announces that he will remain here until the team drives him through a two months' return tour in Australia and will join the Eskimos in Baffin Bay from that port to proceed on the route to the Arctic ocean.

Today Amundsen went on an automobile ride with Henry D. Baker, the American consul, and later dined with him. He was asked concerning his experiences at the pole but said that Shackleton's expedition had a much more difficult time than he.

Amundsen authorizes me to convey information concerning the fact that a South Pole demonstration will be held on Saturday, March 17, at 10 a.m.

Blame Hard Water for Bad Tea

A German scientist who has been conducting a series of experiments for the purpose of determining the relative values of hard and soft water for brewing purposes has discovered that water is very often to blame when the tea coffee or soup doesn't taste just right.

For instance if coffee is made of soft water it pleases and rich drink is obtained while after adding lemon the coffee powder burns if the coffee is made into a paste with a little water and the cup then filled with hot water the largest part of the water will precipitate and the beverage will still be rich and pleasant if, however, hard water is used, bubbles will at once appear and the oil in the coffee will be soon floating on the surface of the drink. The flakes will soon settle and the beverages are less tasty than that one obtained with soft water. Similar observations may be noticed in the preparation of cups of tea which remain stale even after being boiled. In the preparation of tea the hard water causes the formation of a thin film.

Why Steel In Concrete Won't Rust

In these days of steel and concrete construction workers throughout the building structural engineers are frequently asked what the fate of the buildings will be when the steel bones have melted away. The best answer to that is found in the report of the commission of St. Paul's cathedral in London, who recently caused an enquiry to be made in the concrete of the dome in order that the condition of the great chisel which binds it at the base might be disclosed.

This chisel has been embedded in concrete for more than 200 years and it was found to be bright and perfect as when new. The reason why steel encased in concrete is prevented from rusting is that the oxide of iron chemically combines with the cement forming a covering of ferric oxide which is a good protective agent.

Find a Diamond in a Turkey.

A happy surprise developed at Gentry's Cafe for Mrs. Evelyn Schumaker, a widow who lives with her three small children on a handsome Virginia hill and given Mrs. Schumaker tickets for her Thanksgiving dinner. When the day came for the exhibition of the bird game the children had been come attached to the bird that the act of killing it was deflected until Christmas. But the turkey wandered out on the highway and was struck by an automobile and as it was two feet. It was later killed. Mrs. Schumaker was cleaning it when she felt a hard substance in its crop. Investigation revealed a diamond which was pronounced to be worth about $100. She sold the stone and bought a generous supply of toys and another for key.

Plant Which Makes You Laugh

A plant that causes laughter grows in Arabia and produces flowers of a light yellow with petals that can be small black beans. The native and cultivate them and the poison taken in small doses makes the observer feel so happy like a child down of a madman for he will dance sing and laugh until hysterically and at the most frantic capacity and be in an apparently half-sane condition for about an hour. When the excrete and leaves the exhausted exhibitor of these antics falls asleep and when he awakes he has not the slightest remembrance of his frolic doings.

Large Heads and Small Brains

"Large heads do not mean large brains," said Doctor Dawson, an eye physician at an liquid recently on an infant whose brain weighed thirty-four ounces. The average weight of a man's brain is forty-two ounces. "Thickeray had a large head," he declared, "and an archbishop of York wore a size eight hat, but a man with a small head may be heavier than a man with a large one. The brain resembles nothing so much as a walnut, and in men of great men it capacity the convolutions are deep."

Twins Play a Joke

Frank and Will Iott twins who live in Springfield, O. look so much alike that they decided to play a joke on their employer recently. Frank is a good clerk while Will is a shoe salesman. They watched Frank went the shop store to work and Will to a dry goods house. Their employer never knew the difference until told the trick after the stores closed at night. The twins not alike have the same disposition and they dress alike despite their friends.

Know Them by Ear

"Johnny," said Mrs. Jamison, "if you would go over to the grocer and order another peck of those little Berry's apples he wants on the last day."

Old Masquerades as a Boy

After he had been manufacturing as a man for eight months the identity of Mr. M. M. Owen had been discovered and she has been forced to leave town for a time. Mrs. M. M. Owen is the young woman he became engaged to a sixteen year old girl who is believed to be the victim.

Eight months ago when Mrs. Owen Owen was in town to see her brother one of the men in the mill. He is held by all as the most brilliant young man who had ever come to the town. He was a leader in the social life of the mill workers and always ready for a party. He proposed soon after he started to work in one of the mills the next year young man met a girl worker within a short time. It was announced that they were engaged. Owen told the girl that they would be married when he had saved up enough money to buy a cottage.

Worship and notice was evidently not as comfortable to the young woman as she tried to make it seem and a few days ago she put on woman's garb again to take a walk.

One of the policemen of the town thought he recognized the young mill worker, and her arrest followed.

Regalies' Return

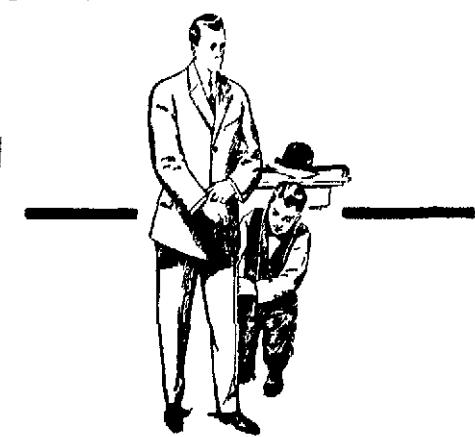

The English royal treasures are stored in steel-lined vaults in Buckingham Palace and in vaults of masonry many feet thick. In Windsor castle in Russia the Imperial treasures had a secure resting place in the hermitage in St. Petersburg. The valuables have been catalogued by Count Ivan Tolstoy. In the collection are to be found some wonderful cabinets in the epoch of Catherine II, and two superb vases in bronze which adorned the boudoir of Marie Antoinette. Works of beauty are the lockets of Potemkin and Bouillon in form of pendants adorned with diamonds and other precious stones. The gallery of porcelain contains a remarkable service of 1700 pieces of the time of Catherine II. The sunburst plate cost $1.200. When the great fire occurred at the Winter Palace eighty of these precious plates were stolen. Seventy were afterwards recovered but ten are still missing, and it is suggested that they may be found in some parts of the collections.

Mrs. Helen Jones of Bedford, Pa., has purchased at a bankupt sale the farm of a man forced to bankruptcy by a breach of promise judgment to her favor.

FEW POLICEMEN IN BOSTON

New York Woman, Who Had Lost Her Way, Discovers Officer After Walking Many Blocks

A young woman from New York on one of her rare visits to Boston found herself getting unusually bouldered in the labyrinth of streets converging at the south Terminus station. With the immobile instinct of the New Yorker who can usually be sure of finding an officer stationed at every crossing she turned to look for a policeman. The no policeman was forthcoming.

After walking a good many blocks she at last sighted a bluecoat. But he was going in the wrong direction the direction away from her. At the end of a hundred yards, if not pursuit she overtook him.

Oh, the gaudy, are you the only policeman in Boston?

The smartly-dressed man stood looking quizzically down on her, then his face widened in a slow smile.

No, lady," he said, and his grin broadened in appreciative tribute to the flushed earnestness of the face he turned to him, "there's me and a boy—Your Companion."

Baby Lived the Tag

"They have the sweetest place up in Warren," said a stout lady in a department store, "people who attend revival meetings in the tabernacle can leave their babies in a nursery near the entrance."

"How do they keep track of them?"

"Easiest thing in the world," was the reply. "They tag them."

"Huh!" exclaimed the friend, not for nothing.

"What is your objection to the plan?" came the inquiry.

"I tried that once when Billy Sunday was in town," was the reply, "and my baby ate the tag."

TALKED A WHOLE LOT.
